

SUKOŠAN

Sukošan is an ideal destination for everyone searching for a direct contact with nature, combined with sports-recreational contents. The long coast has numerous bays, pebbled beaches and clean sea, favourable for family holidays.

LOCATION AND CLIMATE

Sukošan is an attractive little town in central Dalmatia, situated in a bay, 11 km southeast of Zadar, between the Adriatic highway and sea. The biggest marina on the Croatian Adriatic is situated nearby - marina Dalmacija. The average temperature during July is 25°C, and in January 6,5°C. Due to the climate, the Mediterranean vegetation dominates in this area.

HISTORY AND SIGHTS

From historical sights, the following buildings are preserved:

- Parish church of St. Cassian, probably built in the 11th century, gained its present look in the 17th century;

- Little church from the 17th century built on a graveyard;
- Ruins of the summer residence of the archbishops of Zadar from the 15th century can be seen on an islet in the bay;
- Ruins of the medieval fortress built by the knights/dukes of Bribir;
- Medieval chapel, situated cca 3,5 km northeast of Sukošan.

SUKOŠAN TODAY

Sukošan is an ideal destination for everyone searching for a direct contact with nature, combined with sports-recreational contents.

SUKOŠAN

The long coast has numerous bays, pebbled beaches and clean sea, favourable for family holidays. Sukošan abounds in traditional narrow streets and promenades. Suitable private accommodation and comfortable camps contribute to the image of Sukošan as a tourist destination. It is a place full of vineyards, olive-groves, rich vegetation and friendly hosts. It is also well known as a nautical centre - regardless in which direction you head toward from the marina Dalmacija, you'll come across one of the national parks (Kornati, Krka, Paklenica, Plitvice).
